Credit Based Choice System (CBCS) is an innovative educational model that offers flexibility in a learner-centric approach to education. It allows students to choose courses based on their interests and career goals while earning credits for each course completed.

Objectives of the Professional Development Programme

Provide advanced training to improve teaching methodologies and classroom management.
Encourage faculty and students to engage in research activities and publish their findings.
Offer courses and activities that promote overall personal and professional growth.
Allow students to tailor their educational experience to their interests and career aspirations.
Promote cross-disciplinary knowledge through a wide range of elective courses.

Programme Structure

Fundamental courses essential for all students.
A variety of courses from different disciplines allowing students to choose based on their interests.
Courses aimed at developing specific professional skills.
Opportunities for students to engage in action research and dissertation work.
